Zachary B. Meredith

About

My name is Zack. I'm a designer with a passion for clear design, web, the intersection of code + design, CSS architecture, and typography.

I graduated from Loyola University New Orleans in May 2016 with coursework in music and film technology, business and entrepreneurship, typography, and an invaluable liberal arts education.

I'm currently working as a designer at Echo&Co building digital tools for nonprofits and advocacy groups.

Skills

Design with a focus on web, typography, and reusable components. Front-end development with HTML, SCSS, Functional CSS, and Javascript; some experience with designing for iOS, React, PHP, Twig, and design in Xcode with AutoLayout.

Education

Music Industry Studies BS
Loyola University New Orleans
August 2012 – May 2016

2016 Outstanding MIS Student

Work

Echo&Co (July 2016 – Present)

Working to create digital tools and sites for nonprofits and clients focused on social good. Responsible for both design and front-end implementation in modular Pattern Lab environments. Also responsible for icon design, simple SVG illustration, and internal tooling.

Loyno: Dept. of Film & Music Industry Studies (Fall 2015 – June 2016)

Designed and developed a system of components for the department so that student workers and office managers could easily compose new pieces of the site without touching code.

Skuba Design Studio (Summer 2015)

Created static client websites, web assets for the agency, and dove into a database or two.

Freelance

I have worked with musicians, politicians, artist managers, and others in a design or front-end development role.
